Providing those who defend human rights with the knowledge, tools and networks to combat injustice and deliver systemic change is what we do best.

Whether it's speaking out for the rights of gay and lesbian people in Putin's Russia, shining a light on the crushing of peaceful dissent in Xi's China or defending the rule of law in the dawn of Trump's America - human rights defenders are our best hope for a fairer, safer world.

Can you support them to plan and push for transformative change? Can you help us invest in the next generation of human rights defenders?

In 2017 our Human Rights Defenders Advocacy Programme will bring some of the best and brightest human rights defenders to Geneva for intensive training, network building and advocacy at the United Nations.

We know the programme works. We know it empowers human rights defenders and influences decision makers.

Participants from recent years have helped secure the legal recognition of women human rights defenders in Côte d'Ivoire, establish high-level UN positions to combat reprisals and tackle discrimination, and strengthened international law for those working to promote economic, social and cultural rights.
